Foreword

Women Fighting Aids in Kenya (WOFAK) as an AIDS support organization continues in its pursuit of providing comprehensive care and support for women and children living with and affected by HIV through prevention of new infections, provision of and support for quality treatment, care and support services; advocacy on key thematic areas of HIV and AIDS work and partnerships, networking and collaboration with other stakeholders.

In our experiences, we realize that demand for HIV and AIDS services by the community, especially on care and support and impact mitigation has often overstretched the available resources at WOFAK as well as in other service provider institutions that we work with. Even the mainstream GoK facilities are overwhelmed by the sheer numbers of people who present with various needs, thus the birth of concepts such as Public-Private sector partnerships. The HIV/AIDS epidemic has continued to present actors with new challenges that were hitherto not known or foreseen. For instance, when a program starts providing ARV therapy, it finds itself confronted with the new demand or need for adherence services or nutrition or sustainable income generation needs by the service seekers. Ultimately, programs find themselves engulfed in a scenario of trying to do all or too much with too little. The effect of all this is deterioration on service quality or a minimization in numbers of clients served.

WOFAK believes that in itself, it has lots of limitations and faces immense service delivery challenges that it cannot surmount on its own. It therefore recognizes that in networking, in working with other stakeholders in the fight against HIV and AIDS, in recognizing that others have a role to play, we are able to get the best for our clients. We believe that those who seek services from our centres are not our property, we do not own them but we have a duty to offer them the best services within our capacities.

This is why we cherish networking; it is the reason why we wish to continue working with others.

We also recognize that we shall not be able to network effectively with other stakeholders unless we are competently aware of the services other offer and where they are located. This service provider inventory, courtesy of Actionaid Kenya, is one bold step towards institutionalizing networking. It is a perfect step by WOFAK to strengthen referrals as a strategy in competent service delivery in the field of HIV and AIDS. This strategy, however, rests of the grand assumption that other stakeholders will hold the same view as ourselves and will progressively embrace networking. This inventory provides critical information on the organizations we wish to work closely with, including their physical locations; telephone contacts and services they offer. We believe it will make WOFAK's referral system more effective.

We thank the Lead Consultant, Ms. Pascaline Kang'ethe for her tireless efforts in the process of developing this document. We also thank Actionaid Kenya for its continued support and the WOFAK staff for offering hands-on support to the process. We finally thank the organizations that participated freely and offered crucial information to be contained in this inventory. To them all, we give our heartfelt appreciation. We trust that together, we shall move on to realize our national strategic Goal of creating an HIV-free and an AIDS competent society (KNASP III).

Dorothy Onyango (OGW)
Executive Director
Women Fighting AIDS in Kenya.

Acknowledgement

This inventory represents the hard work of several individuals and organisations. This exercise was undertaken by ACTIONAID International - Kenya. We are grateful to the WOFAK team led by its Executive director, Dorothy Onyango, the program officer Charles Koduwa, the program assistant Maureen and all the centre staff lead by their field coordinators. We wish to thank Pascaline Kang'ethe who made site visits to the seven WOFAK centres and other organisations listed in the inventory in order to gather this very important information and put the inventory together. Finally, we owe a debt of gratitude to the individuals who opened their doors, counsellors at the WOFAK centres who put aside their work providing us with the information highlighted in this document.

WOFAK is pleased to express its gratitude to ACTIONAID International - Kenya for it's financial support for this work.

Introduction

Effective referral is facilitated by a well established partnership with other organizations offering support. Lack of coordination is widely believed to compromise the effectiveness of the referral system of not only the WOFAK but many other service provision organizations.

In order to address this problem, the ACTIONAID International - Kenya recognized the need to facilitate networking and exchange of information among service provision organizations offering services that WOFAK does not offer. As a first step this inventory has been developed to assist the counselors and staff at the WOFAK centers establish links that will strengthen their referral system and secondly improve and maximize service provision for its many clients.

This inventory contains contacts of organizations and facilities that provide services ranging from advocacy, behaviour change communication activities, counselling, comprehensive care clinics, decentralised HIV services, education, family planning, home based care, income generating activities, legal advice, maternity, peer education, PMTCT, post-exposure prophylaxis, sexually transmitted infection management, treatment of opportunistic infections, screening and treatment of TB, orphan and vulnerable children support and rights awareness. It also includes schools, widow and youth support groups whose establishment is supported by WOFAK.

The information here was gathered by administering a questionnaire to the key personnel at the seven centres that WOFAK runs and a few other organisations herein. It should be emphasised that because the purpose of this inventory is to highlight services related to HIV support, the document does not necessarily include information on all the services and activities of a particular Organisation. The guide focuses on services that specifically target people living with HIV and AIDS or affected by the impact of HIV/AIDS and particularly those that are not offered by WOFAK.

However this inventory is not exhaustive. Those using it should note that even as the inventory is issued, programmes within organisations are expanding and changing in response to new needs and conditions. In view of this, contributions are welcome to facilitate future editions.
